Dear Mr. Kadamov:

The management and patrons of the Grand Theatre would like to thank you for the privilege of exhibiting a selection of your artwork in our gallery over the past four months. Since your exhibit coincided with the greater part of our performance season, several hundred theatre patrons had the opportunity to view your work during this time, in addition to the many visitors to the gallery itself. The response to your work was enthusiastic, with viewers frequently commenting on the exceptional quality of your composition and execution.

Of course, the highest form of praise for art is when someone decides to purchase a piece, and in this regard as well your show was highly successful with multiple pieces having been sold to local collectors and patrons. We at the Grand Theatre wish to thank you especially for your generosity in donating your portion of the sales back to the theatre in support of our children's programming. The Grand presents a number of opportunities for children in our community to experience the arts, both as spectators and as participants and creators. Thanks to your donation we will be able to ensure that even more local youth, and especially those of more limited means, will be afforded these opportunities.

Although we have had to say farewell to your artwork, your spirit of creativity and generosity will continue to animate our theatre for a long time to come. Thank you for making the Grand Theatre a part of your personal and artistic journey.

With best regards,

William Cull
